Female: Hey, Mark. I like your shoes. Are they new?

Male: These shoes? No, I've had them for a long time. This jacket is new, though. I just bought it at the new department store downtown.

Female: Nice. It looks really good. It goes well with those jeans. Is the new store good? I read about it online, but I heard it is quite expensive.

Male: It's pretty good, actually. And they have an opening sale in the store right now. This jacket usually costs $85, but in the sale it was only 50.

Female: That's a good price. I'll check it out.

Listening 2

Hi, my name is Marshall Grover. That's M-A-R-S-H-A-L-L G-R-O-V-E-R. Marshall Grover. I'm calling as I'd like to move my appointment with Dr. Williams tomorrow from 2pm to 2:15pm. Could you let me know if that's OK? Please call me back at 820-3244 (eight two oh - three two double four).

Thanks.

Listening 3

Good morning, class. Today I'm going to tell you about your group presentation. Please look at the paper I just gave you. You can find out who your group members are. You can also see that you have a choice of three topics-"how to protect the environment", "books that changed the world", or "the most important inventions". You cannot present on any other topics like your favorite sports player, your favorite manga, or whatever. Just one of those three topics. OK? Now, I'd like you to sit together with your group members and start to plan your presentation. Oh, and the date for the presentations. Half the groups will present on October 7th and the other half on the 9th. That means you have about three weeks to prepare.

Female: Today, I'm talking with Alan, who is a pilot. Alan, what made you want to become a pilot?

Male: Well, when I was a child I wanted to be an athlete and then a photographer. But after university, I started working for a camera company as a salesperson. I had to travel to New York and Los Angeles a lot, and I liked that, but I didn't like sales, so finally I decided to study to become a pilot!

Female: Was it hard to change jobs?

Male: Yeah, of course. My parents thought I was crazy giving up a good job to go back to studying. And you know, all my friends were making money, doing whatever they wanted, and having fun, and I was staying at home every night studying. It was a hard few years. But the other students were great and we all really supported each other, and finally we made it!

Female: Great. So, how did you feel when you finally got your first job and you first flew a plane? Were you nervous? Scared? ...Tired?

Male: Haha. I wasn't so nervous, actually. It was just a short flight from London to Paris. I felt excitement, but what I remember most of all is the feeling of pride. It took a long time and a lot of work to make my dream come true, and finally I was doing it.

Female: Can you tell us about some of the difficult things about your job?

Male: Well, it can be tiring; we work long hours, and you know, it can be stressful making sure everybody is safe and comfortable. But the biggest one, of course, is being away from my family. But, I can't complain, really. It's a great job. I love traveling, and now I get paid money to do it! But more than that, I've been able to get to know new people all over the world. It's wonderful.
