Listening One

A: What happened?

B: Sorry, mom. We were playing baseball in the garden, and I hit the ball too hard.

A: I've told you so many times-if you want to play baseball, then you should play in the park!

B: I know. I'm really sorry. Will it cost a lot of money?

A: I'm not sure, but don't worry about that; I know it was an accident. I can cover the hole, so the house won't get too cold at night. We'll find someone to fix it, but you're going to have to help with all the housework from now on.

Listening Two

OK, guys. Please listen. I have some things to tell you about tomorrow's trip. First, the bus will leave at 9 o'clock, OK? We'd like to leave on time, so we want everyone at the school 15 minutes earlier, so we can check everyone is here, so that's 8:45. OK? Don't be late, or we might leave without you! It takes about an hour, so we'll be there around 10. In the morning, the staff in the museum will be doing some experiments that we can take part in, which will be exciting. In the afternoon, you are free to explore the museum in your groups. They have a great robot exhibition, there's a space simulator, and I really recommend the room that shows the most important inventions throughout history. Please bring a pen and paper or your tablet, as you will need to make some notes. Also, wear some sensible shoes - the museum is big, so you will be doing a lot of walking. There is no cafeteria in the museum, so make sure you bring your own lunch. We'll have a little bit of time at the end in the museum shop, so bring some money if you want to buy anything.

Listening Three

Kei: Hi Emma. It's the school trip next month. Are you excited?

Emma: Hey Kei, yeah, it's so soon. Yeah, I guess I'm excited. It will be good to spend time with our classmates. I just wish we were going abroad.

Kei: Oh really? Like where?

Emma: Well, maybe Hawaii?

Kei: For the beaches?

Emma: Well, yeah, but mostly because we could practice our English, and I've also heard lots of people there can speak Japanese, so it would be interesting trying to communicate with people there. Also, I think we can learn about history there, and I heard it has lots of great shops!

Kei: I know what you mean, but I'm really looking forward to going to Kyoto. I've never been, so I'm excited about seeing all the historical places and trying the food!

Emma: Yeah, I agree. I want to try lots of different dishes there.

II

Hi. I'm John, and today I'm going to talk to you guys about some of my experiences working. When I was a high school student, I had an interesting part time job. I worked as a dog walker! That's right - on Wednesday mornings before school, and on Saturday and Sunday mornings, I used to take other people's dogs for a walk! I did it for my final two years of high school, and I continued doing it during my first year of university.

The money wasn't great, but I guess it was OK. I got $5.50 an hour, although sometimes I got more if I had to walk more than one dog. It wasn't an easy job; some of the dogs were challenging to control and I had to walk the dogs in all kinds of weather conditions. I think the hardest part for me was waking up at 5 or 5:30 on the days I was working. I never got used to that. I still don't like it, in fact!

Looking back, though, I'm glad I did it. I loved music and I was always buying CDs, so it was good to get some extra money. Also, it made me realize how much I love spending time outdoors. You know, that's probably why I do the job I do now. I didn't like the feeling of being stuck indoors in a classroom all day.

So, do I recommend having a part-time job to high school students? Well, for me, it was great. I learned things that I couldn't learn at school. I got new skills and it helped me realize what I want to do with my life. But it's also really important to think about the balance between your school life and other things, so you should think about it carefully.
